AUDITED, COMPLIANT, ETHICAL, TRAINED.

The NSSA is the peak national body representing members and individual companies in the security screen industry - covering system manufacturers, fabricators, installers and suppliers of components for the security door and window screen industry. The NSSA ensures that our member's security screen doors and window screens are compliant to the Australian Standards, including the manufacture, testing, and installation of security screen products.

The NSSA monitors and advocates on behalf of our members and keeps them up to date with any changes in the regulations, licensing requirements and activity in the security screen industry. We promote compliant fit-for-purpose security screen products, the maintenance of quality fabrication and installation standards, as well as ethical trading practices, so as to establish and maintain ongoing consumer confidence in the security screen industry.

Why Choose an NSSA Member?

It's simple, our members are compliant, ethical, trained in correct Installation practices and meet regulatory requirements.

For more information visit the NSSA website at nssa.org.au

Our manufacturing members are audited, our installation members are trained. All members comply to the Australian Standards and have access to the latest product and installation advice, regulations, training and licensing requirements that affect the security screen industry.

Security screens and doors are an investment in your home and family. When it comes choosing the right security screens for your home, ensure you choose someone you can trust.

For peace of mind, service and advice when purchasing and installing security screens and doors, look for a member of the National Security Screen Association.
